Part 3. Writing

Be yourself!

Nowadays many wise people claim that the main attribute of ^{p.} successful people is the ability to "be yourself". But what does it mean to be yourself? I will try to answer this question in this article.

In my opinion, being yourself means to understand yourself completely to accept all advantages and disadvantages of your character and to live in harmony with your body and mind.

As Judy Garland once said: "Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else". I totally agree with this quotation because people nowadays look at instagram models, Hollywood actors and everybody wants to live like them. We regularly watch films where we see ^{happy} people who just enjoy their lives. That is why many people think that they will be happy only if they will have same cars and houses like those models and actors, but it is not true at all. Every person is a unique creature with a unique character and body and conditions for happiness are unique too. That is why it is much better to accept yourself and to improve your own personality than to try to copy somebody else and pretend happiness.

I had a friend John who was a really nice boy. The one bad thing was that he was a fan of a famous rapper Lil' Peep. John always wanted to be like Lil' Peep and started taking drugs. Now John has many problems with the police and with his family and his future is quite predictable.

In conclusion I want to underline that the ability to be yourself is one of the most important abilities which reveals great ^{intellig} intelligence of the person. Be yourself and be happy.

PART 1. READING COMPREHENSION. TIME: 40 minutes. Maximum: 25 points.

TASK 1. Read the article and put the sentences A-G in the right place.

How many Mona Lisa paintings do you think there are in the world today? Just the one? I don't think so. The truth is that there are probably many, many Mona Lisa's hanging on walls or in studios. Of course only one was painted by Leonardo Da Vinci. 1) C.

In fact it is true to say that artists have been copying from other artists for hundreds if not thousands of years. Traditionally, it was normal for artists to copy other artists' paintings. This was a way of making sure historical, religious and artistic traditions were available for future generations. It was considered normal for an artist in training to practise by copying the work of other great artists. 2) F. Even today this practice continues.

Historically, the purpose of art was for historical reference, religious inspiration, or simple enjoyment. Most of the time no one cared who painted the paintings. 3) G. Paintings were usually commissioned by the church or state, not by individuals so the name of the artists was really unimportant.

However, from around the 16th century the church and state became poorer and money found its way into the hands of rich individuals. These individuals, as a means of showing their place in society or knowledge of art, drastically increased the demand for art. 4) B. This created people whose job it was to buy and sell paintings. It also created galleries and auction houses. Suddenly art was a business and at its centre was money.

As it became more and more important to decide how to value a painting or a work of art, dealers and collectors needed to create a system to value a painting. 5) E. If a painting was by Da Vinci then it would be exceedingly expensive. If it was a painting by one of his students it would be far cheaper. Now it was important for artists to sign their works so that they could be identified.

The problem with this system was that anyone could copy a signature. More complex ways of identifying the artist were needed, such as the colours they used or how they mixed their paints. 6) A. However, even styles can be copied and art students who needed to make money now could make a name for themselves by being able to copy exactly a great painter's style of work.

In addition, as always when money is involved, laws were needed to protect the real painters and paintings. It is at this point when we stop talking about 'copying' and begin talking about 'forgery' and 'forgers'. Today there are strict laws protecting artists and art from forgery. Dealers and auction houses employ specialists who are skilled at identifying forgeries. 7) D. So don't expect there ever to be one Mona Lisa.

A) Soon it became an art itself to be able to identify who really painted a work of art.

B) Suddenly more and more artists were needed and people competed to buy the paintings of certain individual artists.

C) But the art of copying or, if you can call it by its legal term, 'forgery' is very common in the art world.

D) However, whilst copying is central to learning the art of Art, Art will continue to create the same people that damage it, the forgers.

E) One way of doing this was by identifying an artist.

F) In fact, some of the most famous forgers in history, probably, discovered their skill while studying art at university.

G) This is why we find it difficult to identify the artists behind some of the greatest older paintings.

TASK 2. Unscramble the word for each of the gaps in the text.

Must have toys

Through the 1990s, several fads erupted that would rival the 8) hysteria caused by novelties of earlier decades, such as the pet rock of the 1970s or the Cabbage Patch Kids of the 1980s. Most of these fads were children's toys, and they made both parents and children 9) embark on mad searches to find the newest and rarest 10) items.

Among the most popular toys of the 1990s were Beanie Babies — small animals filled with bean-bag 11) stuffing. Beanies came in all shapes, sizes, and colors, and they were marketed as collector's items. Many American households owned dozens — if not hundreds — of the Beanie Babies.

Finding new — or better yet, rare or retired — pieces was all age. Fast-food chains got in on the action, too, giving away 12) miniature Beanies with children's meals. These promotions often caused long lines and rapid sell-outs. Some companies even began to produce Beanie-related merchandise, such as 13) storage bags or special shelves to hold the valuable Beanie collections.

Other toy fads included the Furby: a furry, though not quite identifiable, creature specially equipped with electronics that enabled it to speak, move and 14) perform other pet-like functions. Children all over America became almost obsessed with "feeding" or otherwise caring for their Furbies. Some teachers found the toys so distracting that they were forced to 15) confiscate them — at least until the end of the school day.

Exam Revision Tips.

How to get through exams?

jot down	sink in	make up	copying out	stick to keep you going through	against the clock	get your hands on	work out	stay up
flicking through	draw up	wear yourself out	work your way through	come up

- The most important thing is to 25) make up a timetable for revision, and then 26) stick to it.
- Study in blocks of about twenty minutes, with five-minutes breaks, and don't work all the time. Then you won't 27) wear yourself out, and you'll have time for things to 28) work your way through.
- Just 29) flicking through your books and notes isn't very helpful. 30) Well, jot down some notes on what you're reading, and 31) draw up quizzes or memory aids, such as cards with key words on. Even 32) copying out is more effective than just reading.

3) check all the past papers you can 34) get your hands on. Practise answering questions 35) work out which topics tend to 37) come up regularly, and focus on them.

Look after yourself! The night before the exam, don't 38) stay up all night; try to get a good night's sleep. And on the actual day, eat something that will 39) keep you going through the exam, such as eggs or pasta.

Task 6. Solve the given riddles. The first letter is given.

- 40) What can you break, even if you never pick it up or touch it? (a promise)
41) What has eighty-eight keys, but can't even open a single door? (a piano)
42) I'm not alive, but I grow. I don't have lungs, but I have a mouth, but water kills me. What am I? (a fire)
43) A word I know, six letters it contains, remove one letter and 12 remains. What is it? (a dozens)
44) They have nor flesh, nor feathers, nor scales, nor bone. Yet they have fingers and thumbs of their own. What are they? (a gloves)

Task 7. How well do you know the cities of the UK? Choose from the given cities, there are extra names.

London	Manchester	Plymouth	York	Cambridge
Cardiff	Belfast	Birmingham	Liverpool	Edinburgh
Lester	Glasgow	Oxford	Nottingham	Brighton

45) Modern Cambridge has been described as "perhaps the only true university town in England." With the establishment of the University allegedly by fleeing Oxford scholars, the city transformed into one of the premiere places of higher education in the country.

46) London is among the oldest of the world's great cities — its history spanning nearly two millennia — and one of the most cosmopolitan.

47) Liverpool is the birthplace of the famous rock group The Beatles.

48) Nottingham has links to the legend of Robin Hood.

49) Manchester may be seen by many as being one of the most famous football cities in the world. The city was the sight of the very first splitting of the atom. Nobel Prize winner Ernest Rutherford was the one who accomplished the atom split in 1917 at its University.

50) The Hobbit and the Lord of the Rings were inspired by places and people in Birmingham. Their author, J.R.R. Tolkien, was from Brum.

Part 3. WRITING. TIME: 60 minutes. Maximum: 25 points.

Today many people are raving about the virtue of 'being yourself'. What does that mean? Are we really meant to be ourselves? You were asked to write the article entitled "Be Yourself!" to the school magazine. Your article must include:

- your explanation and interpretation what it means to 'be yourself';
- one of these quotations and its interpretation relevant to the article:
 - 'To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment' (Ralph Waldo Emerson).
 - 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else' (Judy Garland).
 - 'To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on' (Dave Pelzer);
- an example from your own experience;
- the words PRETEND, REVEAL, ATTRIBUTE. The form of the words can be changed.

Write 250-300 words. The title 'Be Yourself' is not counted.

Part 3

lex When you ask people for advice in times of need, you may often hear the same words, spoken again and again: 'Just be yourself'. I was always quite puzzled by this seemingly meaningless piece of advice. How can a person be someone else but himself? What's that's supposed to mean? Well, the I spoke to people and the more I tried to reveal the attributes of my true self the more I started to see the wisdom within these simple words, and I'm going to share this wisdom with you.

My antisocial nature often caused ~~my~~ me to slowly drift away from my acquaintances. I couldn't 'be myself', because I was terribly afraid of making a bad impression on people. This is where the words gain their power. When I tried to make friends in school or out on the streets, I was just 'being myself'. This helped me overcome my weakness and meet more new people on a daily basis.

You may ask: 'But what do the words mean?'. It means that you must never pretend to be someone you are not. The more you play the role of a fake actor, the more you distance yourself from those, who see true value in you. Judy Garland once said: 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else'. This means that you will always be better at being yourself than at being someone else, because you know yourself better than anyone else.

When life puts you into a corner, remember - be yourself! Don't ever be afraid to show your true colors.

Writing. Be yourself.

The last three decades were strongly connected to such ~~theses~~ topics as feminism, liberalism, democratization and human rights. These loud words have one thing in common: ^{Want} what to especially a human being, an individual or a person, finally decide what does it mean and why it is so popular today? Then continue reading, let's make it clear.

There are a huge amount of definitions of "being true self", etc. But I want to share with you my personal view on this. In my opinion, to be yourself means not even try to pretend to be a person you are not and not being afraid of revealing your true identity to your relatives, friends and other environment. What I mean is following your own desires and, at least not lying to yourself.

It was once said that to be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment. As far as social sciences are concerned, there is a process called "socialisation". It is a process of forming person's identity and values, his (or her) views and ideology depending on what social groups the person is the member of. It means that you contribute as much in your environment as it's contributing in you. Thus, to find a better place for yourself and your friends you surely are to be honest with yourself and following only dreams of yours, not of someone else's.

There may be hard times finding yourself nowadays but if you try, you'll understand what I'm talking about. For example, I found attributes of my own only at the age of sixteen. One day I was scrolling through YouTube

Be Yourself

Without a doubt, it is ^{very} ~~incredibly~~ hard to be your authentic self in modern society. Most people prefer to pretend to have different personalities and not reveal their true character. But, as the great Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment". So, how can you achieve such a difficult goal? And what "being yourself" truly means?

To my mind, "being yourself" is holding on to your values and principals no matter what happens throughout your life, showing people your feelings, emotions and always ¹⁰⁰ confidently stating your opinion. Sometimes it seems convenient to "wear a mask" - be another person and lie in public - but such behavior has dangerous consequences.

In our class at school everyone is keen on Maths. However, one girl is not into this subject at all. Her real passion is Literature. ¹⁰⁰ Instead of following her dreams to study Shakespeare at university, she is constantly revising formulas to become a Maths teacher. It makes her a miserable person. Such ~~behavior~~ habit is an unmistakable attribute of a strong desire to be appreciated by society.

To conclude, it is important to note that "being yourself" is the only way to be happy. Do not seek approval from other people - make them accept you by defending your personal interests. Those who submit to public opinion become just a part of the crowd. A strong will will make you a leader, at least of your own ^{destiny} ~~life~~. If you lose yourself, you will lose your dreams and ambitions, the things that make life worth living. Accomplishing the great goal of being yourself means being able to achieve anything.

Be yourself!

Why do people pretend to be the ones they are not and afraid to reveal their own and unique personality? I suppose, nobody has the answer. (24) 19

We should not be scared to show who we really are, we need to admit all our flaws and drawbacks, we should confess to ourselves that we are not perfect but unique and exquisite in our own way — that is what it means to be yourself in my vision. 16

To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on. How great it is said, isn't it? Dave Pelzer tells us that there is no need to be afraid of making mistakes and being not in the best place mentally and physically. But if you want to succeed, if you want to become the best version of yourself, you must be yourself and learn from every mistake you make and every obstacle you cannot overcome. 13

I am not saying it is easy, it is difficult and it takes time to get to know your real self. Talking about me, I personally spent about three years trying to get rid of an addiction in other people's opinion and acceptance. I started with my own acceptance. I may not be as beautiful, as celebrities, as thin as models, as clever ~~and~~ ^{as} scientists and, as talented as my classmates, but I am me! I might have a kind heart, bright eyes ~~and~~, gorgeous smile and all other things that are attributed to me and that somebody just wishes to have. And as I can say from my own experience, you become truly free when you finally become yourself.

Overall, I think, it's a significant personal trait to be yourself. As it is said, you were born an original, so not die as a copy.

Be Yourself!

British singer Anne-Marie in one of her songs has this line: "I'm okay with not being perfect, 'cause that's perfect to me." For me, the meaning of "being yourself" also comes with self-love and self-acceptance. To be yourself means to ~~app~~ appreciate your best parts as well as your flaws. It means to do what you want to and to stand for what you believe in.

Ralph Waldo Emerson said: "To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment." It is true especially in a modern world. Everyone pretends to be "cool" and doesn't reveal personal feelings and thoughts. There are so many people who tell us what to wear or how to speak. It feels like a mask to hide a face is the main attribute of this generation. So these people who still choose themselves and don't care about what others...

Have you ever felt ashamed because of the way you are? Well, I have. My passion is dancing, so last summer I went to an interview in a very famous studio. A person told me that I am too kind and too positive for that sport. At first, I wanted to change myself. But then I went to another studio where people told me that they loved how kind and positive I am! Now I'm one of their students. This example from my personal experience proves that it doesn't matter how many people tell you to be someone else, always be yourself. You will find your happiness.

You are you and no one can tell you that you're doing it wrong. You can be better every day and you can change in a good way, but where your heart is - that doesn't change. So, be yourself.

PART 3. WRITING.

Be yourself

Self-consciousness is one of the main problems of the modern society. We are constantly in a rush trying to fit into social standards by any price. And this, sadly, makes us all put on a mask so as to be socially accepted. However, do we really need to pretend being someone else to be accepted? The answer is surely no. Being yourself is to embrace your own characteristics without dividing them as pros and cons. Being yourself is allowing your own self to be the way you are. And, lastly, being yourself is equal to loving yourself, that is for sure.

Ralph Waldo Emerson once mentioned that 'To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment'. The saying is rather true - the society is always putting out expectations on how a person should look, behave and live. But staying on your own ground and not giving in to standards whilst there is endless mental pressure is a big deal. Accepting and loving yourself is a time-consuming thing, however there is nothing in common between self-love and egoism, which is worth mentioning.

To be more persuasive, let me tell my own story. My self-love journey has a horrifying background. With a constant will to be perfect, I developed dysmorphophobia and multiple eating disorders. After a long fight I was lucky enough to win it and continue living safe and sound, however, many people lost the battle. This enormous mistake eventually made me reveal my true colours without trying to be liked by everyone even though I am still in recovery.

'Be Yourself!'

Every now and then young people come across the same phrase 'Be Yourself!'. Have you ever asked yourselves a question: what does it mean to be ourselves and why is it so important?

Being yourself is to not pretend to be another person, ^{but} live your own life. That means that we should not try to copy somebody's way of life or live in a way that others want us to. Being yourselves means to feel that we do only what we really want, behave in a way that is optional ^{for} to us.

The question of being yourself concerned even well-known people. 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else' - this amazing quotation belongs to Judy Garland. The main idea was that everyone is the best in his/her individuality. Let me prove it.

Firstly, our own individuality is often underestimated but it is actually what makes us unique, different from each other. People usually are more interested in those who have something special in their personality. That's why those who do not copy somebody else are more popular and attractive. Secondly, being yourself and doing what you really eager to can reveal your talents which will lead you to success. Thirdly, only if you behave in your natural way will the genuine satisfaction and happiness become the attributes of your life. And last but not least, remember that people around you love particularly you but not a parody on somebody else. And we all deserve to be loved.

All in all, be yourselves and live your own lives against all the odds.

"Be yourself"

Banal though the notion may seem but being yourself is the most significant art we must learn. However, every now and then we come across with the yourself motivational words we wonder what do they truly convey.

As far as I am able to judge, being yourself implies seeking for what makes one related without corresponding to others' preferences. The skill of living a life you've chosen yourself seems to be a fundamental key to happiness. Nonetheless, despite the simplicity of a theoretical definition, the majority of people incessantly struggle to be themselves. Why does that happen?

I suppose that the most common pitfall one encounters on their way to stay themselves is a society with its tendency to attribute and operate with clashes and intolerance. Hence, people pretend being someone else in order to satisfy the group of people they depend on. This idea was smartly revealed by Ralph Waldo Emerson; "To be yourself in a world that constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment". Indeed, others' dissatisfaction may become an unseemable obstacle on the way to self-expression.

Let me take my personal experience for instance. No matter how independent I consider myself, I couldn't deal with my friends and relatives' disapproval of leading a career as a rally driver as it is a man's profession they think. In an attempt ~~to~~ not to destroy my perfect relationships with them, I refused ~~from~~ my dream which may make me who I am.

Taking everything into consideration, I must emphasize that being yourself is by far the only means to be fully delighted with a life. Consequently, we should not always sacrifice our passions for the sake of others' approval. Sometimes being yourself matters more.

REVEAL YOUR TRUE SELF

If you ask somebody for advice, you can quite often hear them saying, 'Relax, just be yourself.' You can also read this in different magazines, where celebrities teach you how to make somebody fall in love with you. But have you ever thought what this phrase really means? Well, ~~let's~~ let's find out!

In my opinion, being yourself means not trying to copy someone else's style or show off. It is when you express your sincere emotions and speak freely about your tastes and preferences. ~~But~~ However, One of my favourite quotations says, 'Always be a first rate ~~of~~ version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else.' Indeed, not pretending to be another person is the key. Undoubtedly, you might find people around you attractive and successful, but this is their style, not yours.

As, perhaps, everybody else, I have my own role model. I'm sure you all know Ariana Grande, one of the most popular singers now. I've been following her social media profiles for quite a while, but never had I ever tried to be exactly like her. Surely, ~~she's made a~~ there is some attribution of hers, but it's never affected my personal lifestyle. You can and should use famous people's phrases or movements in order to keep up with modern trends, although not too much.

In conclusion, I definitely recommend you to figure out what you really like and what you keen on. It might not be a piece of cake, but it is worth it for sure. Try to make your own catchy thing. You can use other people as your inspiration but don't get obsessed with them!

YOU'RE NOT AN ACTOR!

Do you have idles or stars that are your role models? It's totally fine till the moment when you start to realize that you've lost yourself. Since the problem of "being yourself" is relevant and widespread among young people, I find it necessary to discuss the problem in this article.

What does it mean to be yourself? Firstly, it means not to be afraid of showing your nature and character. Also, it involves that the person appreciates who he/she is and doesn't try to copy somebody's style or behavior.

But why is it vital? Ralph Waldo Emerson once said "To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment." Just think about this quotation. In the world, where all the people are alike, life is undoubtedly dull and boring. Why do we love our friends? Because of their individuality, and that's the key point of my article. When you pretend that you're another person, people around you attribute to you various false characters. One day you'll be fed up with that lie. After revealing your real personality, you'll be prone to lose all your friends. Sounds awful, doesn't it? Taking into account that you can't be an actor 24/7, why not just try to be yourself?

Two years ago I decided to go bold turky and show my true colors. The results were astonishing! I noticed that my life became easier and way more enjoyable. I also found a lot of people who were willing to accept "my real self". So, take my advice and give it a shot. You won't regret it, I promise!

Be Yourself

Σ In our fast-changing world it's crucial and indispensable to maintain one's personality and state of mind. Yet with globalization and modern trends it's virtually impossible not to become a part of the crowd!

Σ So what does it mean to be yourself? For my part, I believe that it is not hiding one's true personality, it's revealing one's innate qualities and not pretending to be anyone else or attributing your achievements to others. Surely, it's vital to look up on famous people and stars but this shouldn't lead to copying his/her behaviour.

Σ According to Judy Garland, 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else'. This phrase proves the fact that a person shouldn't blindly imitate someone's behaviour. On the contrary, it's way better to bring out your best features and take pride in them. Judy states that it's better to be unique yourself than a second copy of another person.

Σ From my personal experience, I used to be a great fan of Eleanor Roosevelt. I got inspired by her charity work and her active political life. I learnt a great deal from her but soon realized that I also had strong sides of character and began working on them rather than admiring Eleanor.

Σ So how do you define yourself? Life is in your hands and you are the only one to decide.

Be yourself!

It's no longer a secret that the tendency of "being yourself" is gaining stunning popularity. It has become a motto of contemporary youth. They protest strongly against any kind of uniformity which the society tries to oblige them to follow. Young people don't want to suit peculiar criteria that have become prevalent in the last decades. But what behaviour do they attribute to "being yourself"?

R.W. Emerson once said: "To be yourself a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment". By this he meant there's no point in concealing your propensities to follow standards. Alternatively, all opportunities and talents should be revealed no matter how innovative they may seem at first. Society is aiming at balance but without young blood it will decay.

I have a living example in my experience. Being pupils, we all are to pass exams at this very age because it's assumed that without further education no success is to be achieved. My best friend chose a common set of exams, which are far from simple, and spent hours on them. But she found pleasure not in studying, but in playing the guitar and composing songs and melodies, which soon found recognition on the Internet.

„Be yourself!“

Nowadays there are different points of view on the virtue of "being yourself". What does it mean? How to be yourself? Let's reveal the truth and answer on these questions.

Judy Garland ~~was~~ said: „Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else.“ This is the key to the self-independent way of life. To be yourself means to listen to your heart and follow it. If you listen to yourself, you do not have to pretend about your feelings, emotions or interests. Every human has his (her) own character, dreams and thoughts. It is a well-known fact, that sometimes society doesn't get on well with someone. It doesn't mean that this person is bad. May be he (she) is just a little different from others.

For example, Joanne Rowling has gone a long way to make „Harry Potter“ a famous book series. A lot of editors and publishers criticized her literature work but she only got stronger and more confident in herself. One day her book had published and now it is ~~one of the best~~ treated as one of the best novels in the world. Joanne is a true inspiration! She didn't give up and change herself to please someone. She was herself when she was writing „Harry Potter“. She is herself now. One of a kind, Rowling became a living example of strength of the faith.

In conclusion, I want to return to the words of Judy Garland. She was absolutely right. ^{you} Everyone needs to try to be better than you were yesterday. Therefore, you'll learn something new, you'll be proud of yourself and you'll ~~stay~~ won't be just a boring copy of someone else. Faith in yourself and self-love are the main attributes of being yourself.

Be Yourself!

Dave Pelzer once said: 'To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on.' Indeed, 'being yourself' has become a virtue over the recent years. However, it is not that simple to define the meaning of these ~~words~~ words. Let us try to understand what stands behind them. ⁶⁵

Virtually, being yourself is not pretending to be anyone else except from you. It ~~is~~ requires the understanding of your key attributes and shortcomings. Being yourself means living your own life, not the life your parents and friends expect you to live. ~~that~~

Of course, just being yourself does not mean you should not try to change yourself, i.e. have some soft skills, control your emotions ~~as well as~~ go to the gym. It is important to draw a clear ~~distinction~~ distinction between improving yourself in accordance with your life purposes and trying to ~~not~~ do something you do not like because other people do that. ~~that~~

Sometimes we do wrong actions that have ~~an~~ unpleasant consequences, ~~that are usually stemming from the fact that~~ I have had such an experience a couple of years ago. Many people around me studied olympiad mathematics and I wanted to be like them. ~~It is really~~ I still think that mathematical problems and their solutions have something in common with pure beauty. ~~I tried to participate so I~~ tried to participate in those olympiads along with my friends. Eventually, I did not succeed, and ~~it was a very~~ failure inflicted a huge harm on my self-esteem. ~~It was~~ I thought it was a revelation of my mediocrity and inability to ~~think~~ think globally. But ~~now~~ I moved on, and now I do what I really like.

To conclude I would like to emphasize the point that ~~everyone~~ everyone has to acknowledge what they can and cannot do to find the right place for them and make the world a better place. ¹³⁶

Be Yourself!

The topic of being yourself has always been in the centre of heated arguments. To start with, it isn't easy even to define what it does it mean to be yourself. In my opinion, generally it implies following your own good inclinations and patterns of behaviour, but not without fighting with your bad ones.

^{lex.} Why is it a theme of such actuality? To tell the truth, it's hard to remain yourself in this world. Our parents and teachers usually attach great importance to success and they think it cannot be achieved without pretending to be someone else. Thus, easily, a person betrays his/her ^{own} self by following their advice. There is a relevant quotation attributed to Ralph Waldo Emerson: 'To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment'. I fully agree with it, as, indeed, it is very hard to resist the influence of people who insist on your concealing your true qualities and ambitions in order to be someone they want you to be.

Pr. In the same time, it shouldn't be forgotten that being yourself is not just going beyond the Pale because you have such inclinations. On the contrary, you shouldn't reveal your bad qualities, but they must be worked upon and transformed into something beneficial for society. I myself used to be lazy and a bit impolite, but I managed to get rid of these qualities and now I can be myself with no harm for me or somebody else.

Lex. To conclude with, everyone should remember that being yourself is a right which you can gain only by constant work upon yourself, because to be yourself you should be worth it. ~~But once you've gained this right, you should never fall into temptation of being someone else, because only thus you can live your own life.~~

Part 3. Writing.
Be yourself!

Today there are a lot of people who pretend that they better than they are. But it is not right. 'Being yourself' means life without trying to be a copy of someone else you admire. Popular American singer Judy Garland once said: 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second-rate version of someone else'. It is hard to disagree with her opinion because every person has a unique complex of the advantages and disadvantages. It is crucial to reveal the strengths and weaknesses because knowledge of your pluses and minuses helps you to pick yourself up and move on. Moreover, every successful and famous person who has changed the world, for example, Bill Gates and Steve Jobs, had their own way of development and were the best they could be.

~~Moreover every person has their own experience. For example I know~~
I know many people who try to be like their friends or family members, who always achieve the goals, and do not understand ~~that~~ how silly they look. Unfortunately, these people ~~become~~ usually become a victim of their ~~purpose~~ purpose (to be a second rate version of somebody). For instance, they copy all the attributes of another person: somebody's behavior, emotions, style, profession and even speech. It can lead to misunderstanding between the person and society. I strongly believe that it happens because people do not understand that they lose their individual character.
Nowadays the problem of copying somebody causes great argument and controversy. We should respect ~~all that given to us by nature~~ and appreciate all that given us by nature.

"Be Yourself"

It is common knowledge that there are many standards of beauty and behaviour nowadays. People pretend to be someone else, not the unique version of themselves. In fact, it has been a problem for many years. Long time ago Dave Pelzer said: "To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on". This quote should become the

By the way, nowadays there are many things, which affected people's brain, like the Internet and social media, so people stop thinking as individuals. They become addicted of standards, when also when they see different people on social media, who reached the top without making efforts. Following Dave Pelzer's quote people should try to do everything to stay unique and be an individual. They should make different attempts, make mistakes and not live a life of different person, because each of us has different and unique life. The main attribute of being yourself is not pretending to be like others.

As for me, I remember myself being fourteen years old teenager trying to live like others, wearing the same clothes, doing the same make up, going to the same classes. After many years when I read Dave Pelzer's quote I realised that I have to be myself and live my own life.

To sum up, I would like to say that the formula of being yourself has revealed and all people should follow it to live their best life.
