Be Yourself

• Similar clothes. Similar interests. Similar thoughts. We are living in a modern world right now. And at the same time we are different. We have various cultures, habits, appearances. So, the art of communication with society without losing your identity is called being yourself. Nevertheless, is it still relevant?

• One suggestion that has been put forward reveals, that everyone is supposed to meet the demands of the 21st century. It doesn't mean, that we should keep our own senses and preferences at bay. They make us unique, appealing. On the other hand, people, who follow only common trends in everything, tend to be disrespected. The word "copycat" attributes to that behaviour. Even Ralph Waldo Emerson said, "To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment".

• Getting back to my own experience, I should admit, that I used to consider public views on this or that issue during the every decision. I was a whiz kid, but some failures played havoc with my sense of self-worth. I was dressed like the most of my school friends. I was afraid of being all alone. Unfortunately, the more I copied others' behaviour, the stronger they disliked me. So, suddenly I decided to stop that. I decided to be myself! You ~~are~~ are thinking, that I've lost my friends! Well, that's true, but I got the real ones. That was the accolade I couldn't even pretend.

• All in all, get along with all your friends, but don't lose your opinion. Just be yourself, because you are a star!

Be Yourself!

In our modern world the number of people who pretend to be somebody else instead of being themselves is growing. These people tend to believe that if they do so, they ~~won't~~ will be better accepted by the society. Apart from this one there are lots of reasons why people behave this way, but before going into details let's clarify what being yourself really means.

Each person has their own personality. So, in my ^{opinion} ~~point of~~, - behaving naturally without constantly thinking about how others will react means being yourself. Ralph Waldo Emerson expressed the idea that being yourself in the modern world is the greatest accomplishment. This saying is actually true because in most cases the society is the one to blame for ~~so~~ putting so much pressure on people that they decide to change their appearance, way of living and even way of thinking. So those who stay themselves can say that it is one of the biggest accomplishments.

In fact, we are meant to be ourselves; speak freely, wear what we want and be friends with those who we like.
Moreover, we should not be afraid to reveal our hobbies and share thoughts. What we should do is to figure out who we truly are and ^{then} stick to it. To be honest, when I was ~~at~~ 14 years old I had a similar problem. I tended to say what my peers expected to hear from me. Also my behaviour around them differed from the one at home. I tried to change my preferences even though I did not want to. Fortunately, time passed and I understood that I should not have followed the crowd, attributed to it.
To conclude, I want to say that we should ~~not be afraid to~~ be ourselves.
We have only one life to live.

P Be yourself. These days people like to use the phrase 'be yourself' or 'love yourself' and brag about it all the time. What's so appealing in it and why is it important? Let's figure it out!

gr In modern society 'being your' basically means to not be afraid to express yourself, to share your thoughts freely. Sometimes, people tend to pretend like they are someone that they're actually not. They do or say the things they don't mean just because they try to prove something or to get approval from other people. Friends or family can pressure you to act a certain way, to have certain hobbies, to like certain attributes. But isn't that insane? That's just inhumane! The 'be yourself' movement encourages people to reveal their true self.

A lot of famous people support the movement. Ralph Waldo Emerson said, that being yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment. By that he means that staying who you truly are in this discouraging and pressuring world is a trait of a really strong person. Also, musicians and artists like BTS, Stray Kids and ITZY promote this ideology in their music. Words like 'You can't stop me loving myself', 'I'm different' and 'I just wanna be myself' can be heard in their songs.

I can tell by my own experience that being yourself is ^{very} ~~extremely~~ important. Back in middle school I was way too shy to show my artwork to anyone and too scared to voice my opinion. It made me a wallflower, someone who no one really knows about. I've decided to change that two years ago, I've decided to show who I am. Now I have lots of people who support me and my art and not only in social media, but in real life too. If you're reading this, step up in your game! Be someone who you really are! Be Yourself!

Writing.

Be yourself.

cog. - 11 u. - 3 app. - 1
cpi. - 1 sp. - 3

"Be yourself", that is the quote we see on billboards, in films and hear from 'successful' people. Being yourself is crucial nowadays. One of the key factors on your way of achieving your goals is to be yourself, meaning to have a healthy self esteem. But what does it really mean? Being yourself is to have a courage to reveal your real self to others, and to have no fear of being judged for it. If you think about it, it is rather difficult, because modern society tends to make us feel unworthy by setting unachievable, false images. Like Ralph Waldo Emerson said: "To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment". And I can totally agree with him. All these ~~facts~~ issues are becoming worse with a development of social media, like Instagram, Facebook, etc., which advertise useless items for you to be more pretty, more lucky, more skinny or having more money. It also makes you feel jealous and envious towards other people.

We face prejudice in our life quite often. And the most important for us is to not let it grow into our souls and stay true to ourselves.

In my opinion, teen age is a period of your life when you're still learning how to be yourself. As for me, I'm not sure of who I really am or which attributes of my life define me, but what I know is that I have a long way to complete a journey of discovering my identity. As a teenager you should try yourself out in various aspects of your life, find a hobby, figure out what you like and what you don't. My advice for people is to speak up, open up to the world. Life is not worth pretending to be someone else, there is only one of you, give yourself credit and be unique. Be yourself.

BE Yourself!

19 Have you ever thought what is it like to be yourself? What should you do to become yourself? What to start with? In fact, the key answer on these questions is not 'staying on your level of intellectual development and social skills'. The answer is becoming a better version of yourself by learning to love yourself.

David Pelzer once said, 'To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on'. There is no doubt that he is absolutely right. I would add that you have to love yourself to have guts to move on. The man who is trying hard to work over his personality will never be ~~afraid of making a mistake as well as he is~~ frightened by the idea that someone can reveal his negative characteristics. For sure, criticism helps people to develop. The person whose main aim is to become a better version of himself would attribute to opinions of other people, listen to advices, ~~and~~ sort them out and grow.

All of that will work only if you respect yourself and accept the fact that anyone can be wrong. ~~What is more important, if someone wants to be himself, he should forget how to pretend and stop hiding behind a mask at least in front of himself.~~

According to my own experience, ~~in my teenage period~~ I had a lot of problems with my mother. We never got on well. It started to get better only when I realised that I never loved myself and my mother never loved herself. Only when we got ~~accepted each other~~ that point we stopped to pretend that we are someone else. I tried to love myself and suddenly became more open for her. ~~We went through hard times and~~ Now our relationships are better than ever.

Reveal your nature

2 Nowadays, we hear the phrase "Be yourself" quite often. But what does it really mean?

As for me, I understand this phrase in the following way. Our society is really demanding and sometimes it is extremely complicated to stand up for your ideas or principles and never let others change you the way they want. I believe being yourself is ~~not pre~~ staying honest with yourself and not pretending someone else.

Jude Garland said: "Always be a first rate ~~person~~ version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else". I think the author of this ~~para~~ statement wanted to say that every character is unique and there is no point in chasing rainbows by trying to be someone else. Also, a person should ~~be~~ improve ~~yo~~ himself, become a better version of himself instead of trying to be another person.

I will support my point of view by giving an example from my own experience. There was a girl in my class at school who was an excellent student. She was smart and won every ~~other~~ school competition she took part in. I started to copy her behavior believing it will help me to achieve the same results. But I found out that except studying she ~~cannot~~ ^{could not} do anything else as all her time was dedicated to studying. ~~That girl had no friends and~~ It dawned on me that there is no perfect people. ~~and~~ That's why ~~there it is~~ it is useless to copy someone. We should take after some positive features but never lose ~~over~~ our identity, ~~our~~ unique features.

All in all, I would like to state again being yourself is the greatest accomplishment. ~~All~~ All people are different and it is ~~beutif~~ beautiful. Be inspired by other people, but stay your course, have your own ideas and dreams, do not attribute yourself with other's features!

"Be yourself"

How many times have you actually seen those mysterious titles saying "Be yourself"? It is no surprise that we see them popping up everywhere, starting from television adverts and ending with magazines we are just lazily flipping through. Every so often we run into posts of celebrities or Instagram-bloggers appealing to us with these same pleas. But how many people do actually understand their meaning?

It is crucial to figure out what the statement "Be yourself!" ~~really~~ truly means. My interpretation of these words is simple: to be yourself means to divide yourself from society's pressure and carefully think about what you want to do and who you want to be in this life. It is of paramount importance to stop paying attention to what other people want you to do, whether it is parents or teachers. If you realise that your engagement does not correspond with your true wishes - immediately quit it and stop pretending to be someone else, reveal your true personality and interests to yourself in the first place. Find your passion by taking up new activities and analysing your feelings. A great number of people eventually found themselves in science and consequently greatly contributed to it. However, the most important of all things is to ~~stop~~ stop comparing yourself ~~with~~ ^{to} others. Judy Garland once said: "Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else". Indeed, you must ^{only} compare yourself ~~only~~ to yourself in the past. There was a period when I felt ~~derogated~~ just because my classmate was seemingly more talented than me. Only later ~~and~~ I realised that I should value my achievements and take pride in them, rather than feel bad because of someone else's.

All things considered, it is ~~even~~ important to define your own way in this life. It may be a thorny path, yet only this will allow you to really be yourself.

'Be Yourself'

~~19/11~~ Probably everyone has an identity crisis at some point in life. However, teenagers and young adults have it the worst when the pressure of parents and peers becomes emotionally draining. Personally, I find the topic of being yourself equally as hard as the topic of loving yourself. And the reason for that is the fact that loving yourself as a whole is a fundamental attribute of revealing your true identity. Only then you can do things you truly want such as wearing clothing according to your personal style, or speaking up in the argument.

Ralph Waldo Emerson once said: 'To be yourself in ~~the~~ a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment' and I cannot agree more. My heart breaks every time I see an aspiring designer being forced into business school, or a kid, whose parents neglect their sport achievements. But what I want for everyone to know is that they are more than dreams of society, and, ~~unfortunately~~ more and more people miss my message.

Be Yourself.

February 3d, 2000

by Mary Vakhterkina

Nowadays a lot of people say that it is really important to be and love yourself, to be grateful for who you are because you are the only one on this planet, you are a unique sample of yourself. One of my favourite Oscar Wilde's quotes is "Be yourself. Everybody else is already taken." So what does it precisely mean? I believe it is really important not to pretend being someone else as sometimes people try to hide some of their personal traits or interests in order to make friends, to be liked or respected by others, to become a part of a certain group. Besides, some people ~~are~~ simply don't like some parts of their bodies, skin peculiarities such as freckles, birthmarks, smile etc. and they try to conceal or change. Ralph Waldo Emerson once said: "To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment." Indeed, modern world's requirements are so high that it seems like the only right thing to do is to change yourself to adapt to the conditions but it is crucial to remember that your friends and family love you for who you are, your laugh, traits, smile. Let me give you an example from my own experience. I have a friend and she is truly amazing, beautiful both inside and out. To make a long story short, once she changed because she made friends and wanted to be in their team. She stopped being herself. But in the end, she realized she made a mistake and started treasuring herself and revealed all her personal traits.

To be yourself means to be who you are, love what you do, to be a real attribute, to be authentic no and did matter what others do think about you.

"Be Yourself!"

One issue that caused lots of controversy over the years is the importance of being yourself. Today many people are raving about the virtue of "being yourself". Most of them think that nowadays it is really necessary for people to show their individuality and not to be ashamed of yourself.

Personally, I agree with this opinion. I believe that everyone should be yourself despite any facts. As far as I am concerned, "being yourself" means not to be afraid to show your personality to others and to be proud of yourself. In the modern world having an individuality is really important not to be like others. Your body shape, traits of character, sense of style may be different but they "make you yourself" and help to stand out in a crowd. Everyone is different and we pretend to be so. We should attribute to Judy Garland who once said: "Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else". This quotation means that a person should not copy others to become a better person. But sometimes we do it because we feel insecure. I would like to prove it giving an example from my own experience.

10/2 This story happened with my little sister. She was really nervous about changing her school, as she worried that nobody would want to be friends with her. That is why she decided to change her personality and to become like others classmates. However, no one ~~payed~~ paid attention to her. She was really upset, so my mum told her to "be ^{her} yourself". After that, my little sister went to school wearing clothes she used to wear and she behaved as always. Because of it everyone in her class changed their opinion about her and soon she found good friends there. All in all, "being yourself" is really important, as it is a key to succeed in life.
it should be revealed that

Be yourself - it is your life.

In the era of globalization previous social roles and types of behaviour paled into insignificance which was a cause for people of generation Z to start asking about their places in life, ways of finding yourself and their destiny. Are you one of these curious individuals, who don't want to live following to outdated standards? If your answer is "yes", then this article will be a key to your heart.

What does a quote "Be yourself" really mean? It can be described as a will to split up with brainwashed, typically thinking masses, who don't even realize that there are hundred thousand similar people living with the same cliches. A key factor of being ^{unique} different is to try finding anything that will differ you from ~~the~~ all members of society, choose a way of a leader not a follower: think by yourself, don't blindly follow others' point of view. As for teenager like me, I can't doubt that being individualistic means constantly trying to make your life not as a copy of someone else one, whose aim is to pretend to be like a popular idols, but finding something deep inside your heart that makes you special. If you get emotions and an activity touches your soul, try to reveal your love for it, don't fear the obstacles, just do it. As Judy Garland someday said: "Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else". She clearly describes that only self-developing will make you feel as a confident personality whose attributes are freedom and being yourself.

~~to~~ In a nutshell, it can be said that ^{16x} all people are ~~painters~~^{people} of their lives. The real value that most ~~forget~~^{people} is that only a ~~real~~ painting ^{16x} worth seeing. Anyone can copy a signature and pretend to be another person, but only how you paint your picture, what colours you use (your own mixed or standard) describes it as a masterpiece or just as a copy.

Part 3. writing.

Be yourself!

There is no doubt that each of us saw publications on the Internet from celebrities and influencers about importance of individuality and being yourself. But what is this phrase really mean? Why is it not enough to live in your body and have your own name?

Sometimes we feel ourselves not in our place. We can't be honest with friends or even strangers. We show the opinion which has nothing in common with our thoughts and values. If you feel that something goes wrong, it will be a sign to change your behaviour. Being yourself is simple and extremely challenging at the same time. It is about dancing in crowded street, about singing in the shopping center and imagining you are a super star in a popular clip. You should have a strong faith that you are exquisite and your body is perfect. This is the meaning of "being yourself".

"To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on". This quotation of Dave Pelzer reveals the purpose of being yourself. In difficult ~~set~~ situations nobody can give ~~you~~ a hand. ~~you must be brave~~ You should find a power in your heart to overcome failure and move on. You will complete with all difficulties if you understand yourself and don't live other person's life.

I know one girl, Strong, powerful and mad girl. She has an Instagram account ~~in it~~ where she writes about her travels. ~~She is to~~ She was fourteen when she went to Europe. ~~living at~~ She lived in camp and stopped cars. She finds the brave to follow her dreams. Brave, madness and photocamera are her constant ~~attributions~~ attributions. It is an amazing example of "being yourself" even if all say you are maximalist.

Always be yourself. Don't pretend to be someone else. --
Never Follow your dreams and your goals and never get up.

TASK 1. Read the article and put the sentences A-G in the right place.

How many Mona Lisa paintings do you think there are in the world today? Just the one? I don't think so. The truth is that there are probably many, many Mona Lisa's hanging on walls or in studios. Of course only one was painted by Leonardo Da Vinci. 1) C +

In fact it is true to say that artists have been copying from other artists for hundreds if not thousands of years. Traditionally, it was normal for artists to copy other artists' paintings. This was a way of making sure historical, religious and artistic traditions were available for future generations. It was considered normal for an artist in training to practise by copying the work of other great artists. 2) D -. Even today this practice continues.

Historically, the purpose of art was for historical reference, religious inspiration, or simple enjoyment. Most of the time no one cared who painted the paintings. 3) B +. Paintings were usually commissioned by the church or state, not by individuals so the name of the artists was really unimportant.

However, from around the 16th century the church and state became poorer and money found its way into the hands of rich individuals. These individuals, as a means of showing their place in society or knowledge of art, drastically increased the demand for art. 4) B +. This created people whose job it was to buy and sell paintings. It also created galleries and auction houses. Suddenly art was a business and at its centre was money.

The problem with this system was that anyone could copy a signature. More complex ways of identifying the artist were needed, such as the colours they used or how they mixed their paints. 6) A +. However, even styles can be copied and art students who needed to make money now could make a name for themselves by being able to copy exactly a great painter's style of work.

In addition, as always when money is involved, laws were needed to protect the real painters and paintings. It is at this point when we stop talking about 'copying' and begin talking about 'forgery' and 'forgers'. Today there are strict laws protecting artists and art from forgery. Dealers and auction houses employ specialists who are skilled at identifying forgeries. 7) F -. So don't expect there ever to be one Mona Lisa.

A) Soon it became an art itself to be able to identify who really painted a work of art.

~~B) Suddenly more and more artists were needed and people competed to buy the paintings of certain individual artists.~~

~~C) But the art of copying or, if you can call it by its legal term, 'forgery' is very common in the art world.~~

~~D) However, whilst copying is central to learning the art of Art, Art will continue to create the same people that damage it, the forgers.~~

~~E) One way of doing this was by identifying an artist.~~

~~F) In fact, some of the most famous forgers in history, probably, discovered their skill while studying art at university.~~

~~G) This is why we find it difficult to identify the artists behind some of the greatest older paintings.~~

Exam Revision Tips.

How to get through exams?

jot down	sink in	make up	copying out	stick to keep you going through	against the clock	get your hands on	work out	stay up
flicking through	draw up	wear yourself out	work your way through	come up

- The most important thing is to 25) make up a timetable for revision, and then 26) stick to it.
- Study in blocks of about twenty minutes, with five-minutes breaks, and don't work all the time. Then you won't 27) wear yourself out, and you'll have time for things to 28) jot down.
- Just 29) flicking through your books and notes isn't very helpful. 30) Well, draw up some notes on what you're reading, and 31) come up quizzes or memory aids, such as cards with key words on. Even 32) copying out is more effective than just reading.

33) work your way through all the past papers you can get your hands on. Practise answering questions 35) against the clock. It's also helpful to try to 36) write out which topics tend to 37) stick in regularly, and focus on them.

- Look after yourself! The night before the exam, don't 38) stay up all night; try to get a good night's sleep. And on the actual day, eat something that will 39) keep you going through the exam, such as eggs or pasta.

Task 6. Solve the given riddles. The first letter is given.

- 40) What can you break, even if you never pick it up or touch it? (a promise)
 41) What has eighty-eight keys, but can't even open a single door? (a player)
 42) I'm not alive, but I grow. I don't have lungs, but I have a mouth, but water kills me. What am I? (fire)
 43) A word I know, six letters it contains, remove one letter and 12 remains. What is it? (a dozen)
 44) They have nor flesh, nor feathers, nor scales, nor bone. Yet they have fingers and thumbs of their own. What are they? (g. loves)

Task 7. How well do you know the cities of the UK? Choose from the given cities, there are extra names.

London	Manchester	Plymouth	York	Cambridge
Cardiff	Belfast	Birmingham	Liverpool	Edinburgh
Lester	Glasgow	Oxford	Nottingham	Brighton

- 45) Modern Cambridge has been described as "perhaps the only true university town in England." With the establishment of the University allegedly by fleeing Oxford scholars, the city transformed into one of the premiere places of higher education in the country.
 46) London is among the oldest of the world's great cities — its history spanning nearly two millennia — and one of the most cosmopolitan.
 47) Liverpool is the birthplace of the famous rock group The Beatles.
 48) Nottingham has links to the legend of Robin Hood.
 49) Manchester may be seen by many as being one of the most famous football cities in the world. The city was the sight of the very first splitting of the atom. Nobel Prize winner Ernest Rutherford was the one who accomplished the atom split in 1917 at its University.
 50) The Hobbit and the Lord of the Rings were inspired by places and people in Plymouth. Their author, J.R.R. Tolkien, was from Brum.

Part 3. WRITING. TIME: 60 minutes. Maximum: 25 points.

Today many people are raving about the virtue of 'being yourself'. What does that mean? Are we really meant to be ourselves? You were asked to write the article entitled "Be Yourself!" to the school magazine. Your article must include:

- your explanation and interpretation what it means to 'be yourself';
- one of these quotations and its interpretation relevant to the article:
 'To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment' (Ralph Waldo Emerson).
 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else' (Judy Garland).
 'To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on' (Dave Pelzer);
- an example from your own experience;
- the words PRETEND, REVEAL, ATTRIBUTE. The form of the words can be changed.

Write 250-300 words. The title 'Be Yourself' is not counted.

Exam Revision Tips.

How to get through exams?

jot down	sink in	make up	copying out	stick to
keep you going through	against the clock	get your hands on	work out	stay up
flicking through	draw up	wear yourself out	work your way through	come up

- The most important thing is to 25) make up a timetable for revision, and then 26) stick to it.
- Study in blocks of about twenty minutes, with five-minutes breaks, and don't work all the time. Then you won't 27) wear yourself out, and you'll have time for things to 28) jot down.
- Just 29) flicking through your books and notes isn't very helpful. 30) Well, draw up some notes on what you're reading, and 31) come up quizzes or memory aids, such as cards with key words on. Even 32) copying out is more effective than just reading.

33) work your way through all the past papers you can get your hands on. Practise answering questions 35) against the clock. It's also helpful to try to 36) write out which topics tend to 37) stick in regularly, and focus on them.

- Look after yourself! The night before the exam, don't 38) stay up all night; try to get a good night's sleep. And on the actual day, eat something that will 39) keep you going through the exam, such as eggs or pasta.

Task 6. Solve the given riddles. The first letter is given.

- 40) What can you break, even if you never pick it up or touch it? (a promise)
 41) What has eighty-eight keys, but can't even open a single door? (a pumpkin)
 42) I'm not alive, but I grow. I don't have lungs, but I have a mouth, but water kills me. What am I? (a tree)
 43) A word I know, six letters it contains, remove one letter and 12 remains. What is it? (a dozen)
 44) They have nor flesh, nor feathers, nor scales, nor bone. Yet they have fingers and thumbs of their own. What are they? (g. loves)

Task 7. How well do you know the cities of the UK? Choose from the given cities, there are extra names.

London	Manchester	Plymouth	York	Cambridge
Cardiff	Belfast	Birmingham	Liverpool	Edinburgh
Lester	Glasgow	Oxford	Nottingham	Brighton

- 45) Modern Cambridge has been described as "perhaps the only true university town in England." With the establishment of the University allegedly by fleeing Oxford scholars, the city transformed into one of the premiere places of higher education in the country.
 46) London is among the oldest of the world's great cities — its history spanning nearly two millennia — and one of the most cosmopolitan.
 47) Liverpool is the birthplace of the famous rock group The Beatles.
 48) Nottingham has links to the legend of Robin Hood.
 49) Manchester may be seen by many as being one of the most famous football cities in the world. The city was the sight of the very first splitting of the atom. Nobel Prize winner Ernest Rutherford was the one who accomplished the atom split in 1917 at its University.
 50) The Hobbit and the Lord of the Rings were inspired by places and people in Plymouth. Their author, J.R.R. Tolkien, was from Brum.

Part 3. WRITING. TIME: 60 minutes. Maximum: 25 points.

Today many people are raving about the virtue of 'being yourself'. What does that mean? Are we really meant to be ourselves? You were asked to write the article entitled "Be Yourself!" to the school magazine. Your article must include:

- your explanation and interpretation what it means to 'be yourself';
- one of these quotations and its interpretation relevant to the article:
 'To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment' (Ralph Waldo Emerson).
 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else' (Judy Garland).
 'To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on' (Dave Pelzer);
- an example from your own experience;
- the words PRETEND, REVEAL, ATTRIBUTE. The form of the words can be changed.

Write 250-300 words. The title 'Be Yourself' is not counted.

look around. Not only your nearest and dearest, but almost strangers seem so concerned about what you wear, do and even think. You're used to listening to them and giving what they demand. To pretend ^{someone} who you aren't. But are their opinion and traits they attribute to you so important? The only person you're going to have till the end of your days is you. So get rid of such boundaries. Wear whatever you want. Find the hobby you adore and turn it into a ~~hard~~ job. Do what you ~~think~~ believe to be important. Be yourself. It's legal as long as you don't hurt others.

As Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, 'To be yourself in ~~the~~ world that is so constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment.' Seems relatable, doesn't it? Just recall how many times you study instead of you doing your hobby, even though the work in the book make no sense for you, to go for this job as it's going to be more profitable, to wear this kind of clothes as it's more fashionable, to behave this way so girls/boys should like you. 'Aren't you fed up with it?' Having heard such things for millions of times can break anyone. So we finally put up with it lead a miserable life thanks to it. Saving our own personality and revealing it is dreadfully hard. But it's absolutely worth it.

It's common to believe that fighting for your happiness is impossible. I used to think so as well. I've always been told that log. voc. girls are good at humanities and arts. I was completely sure it was right and tried to pay more attention to these spheres. The only problem was that I absolutely ³⁰⁰ hated these subjects. I was drowning in my own tears. Once I've decided to pay more attention to maths. To my surprise, I realised that despite years of struggling with it I'm really into the subject. Yes, I'm not as well-skilled as I'm at other ~~subject~~ fields I've studied before, yet I'm definitely happier than ever before.

Everyone has their own key to success and ^{even} to themselves. Just find the things you love and stick to it. We are all unique. Don't forget it.

~~Part~~ Part 3.

Be Yourself!

Everyone is unique. That is why you should be yourself. Being yourself is not only having only your personality, interests, hobbies, points of view, but also acting in situations due to your own decisions, not thinking like someone else and do not pretend to be a better version of yourself. 50

Judy Garland once said: "Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else." I think this quotation perfectly fits our today's topic. Judy Garland speaks of not being like someone else and following someone as an ultimate example of your actions. You should do everything by yourself, pick your own ways of dealing with problems, so you can learn from your mistakes and gain your own life experience. If you are "a second rate version of someone else", it will be hard for you to live a life, that ~~what~~ you want to live. 50

This topic is relevant to me, because I have some experience that proves my point of view. Some time ago I had troubles with making friends. I was shy, I was afraid to show my true nature. Then I looked around me and see my classmate, who was very funny and friendly, but at the same time selfish. I decided that I should not like her. But it only made everything worse. Then I decided that I should speak more about myself and be open to new people. And now I am considered to be a very friendly and easy-going person. I didn't think that can attribute to my life greatly, but it did!

In the end I would like to say that you should really be yourself, otherwise no one will be able to reveal your true nature! 39

Part 3

Be yourself!

A lot of people tell us: "Be yourself! You are unique!" What are they implying? Are their words meaningful or not? Should we pay attention to them? ~~There~~ There are too many questions, aren't they? Let's find answers to them.

I am seventeen. This is the age of understanding yourself and making a load of choices. That is why I am constantly thinking about what 'being yourself' means, and I have come to some conclusions.

Firstly, 'being yourself' means having your own point of view. It is not about pretending or conforming. It is about standing up for yourself. Last summer my friends (now they are not my friends) offered me to try smoking. ~~They said~~ "If you consider yourself to be a cool person, you have to smoke," said they. But I refused because I did not want to harm myself. Health is a precious thing for me, and I will never poison my body. After this occasion guys were laughing at me and calling me names for at least two weeks. It was really offensive but I did not change my mind.

Secondly, being yourself is the only thing you can do properly.
Jude Garland advises to always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else.
I completely agree with her. There is no use copying somebody's lifestyle, thoughts, choices and words because they don't come from your heart. You will never be successful or even happy ^{unless} you wear your ^{convenient} ~~favorite~~ clothes, read your favorite books or listen to the music that drives you crazy.

All said above is my own experience and my own opinion.
You can trust it or not because you are who you are. Just be yourself and reveal your best features!

PART 3 WRITTING

BE YOURSELF!

By Alex Smith, 03/02/2020

I bet you've heard a phrase "be yourself" many times. But have you ever thought about its meaning? In today's article I'll open your eyes on true definition of this phrase.

Let me start with saying that you can't have an absolutely authentic personality. Many factors influence us in the modern world. We can't rid of the experience we already have. Our family, friends and co-workers with whom we talk everyday form our personality. Being yourself doesn't mean ignoring the existing knowledge. In contrary, every book you read and every conversation you have form your character.

Personally, when I studied in sixth grade I admired my classmate Anna. She was the best student of our class. Anna learnt the poems by heart, could play the violin and participated in art competitions. I decided to copy her. Unfortunately, I realised that I hate the sound of the violin. I didn't give in and started attending Art classes. After a week of hard attempts I finally understood that I don't want to be anyone else. I stop pretending to be Anna and continued living my own life. Next month I succeed in winning English competition. As Judy Garland once said, "Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else."

In conclusion, I'd like to say that living your own life is much more awesome than simply copying others. I hope that you'll find your own path towards a prosperous life. The only thing you need to do for it is to reveal your attributes.

Be Yourself!

Currently people usually forget about their true personality and pretend for another look spiritual look. It's dangerous to open your ~~face~~ sincere face to the world, because ~~the society and its members are cruel and jealous and can laugh at you or just deceive.~~ This thought is stuck in heads of the majority of people on the whole Earth. Individuals prefer to reveal their feelings, emotions and thoughts and ~~show their inner cages~~ because this stat don't attribute to the social standards, trends and fashions. Being yourself is able to relief our hidden pain, damage negative memories and thoughts. If self-expressing is so necessary, why for our mental health, why don't we know its meaning and using? Let's define the main point of being yourself. 75

Freedom of self-expression and freedom of actions in public are the most important elements of our life. ~~Then you aren't~~ So as not to become ~~available~~ and get vanity you ought to say what you think, straightly without false ideas. In addition, being yourself includes participating in activities, which really appeal to you and interest you. The last point is to express emotions as you wish: in any words or actions. 76

Following all these rules is quite difficult and hard in reality, so it's definitely a great achievement of ~~the~~ personality. Even Ralph Waldo Emerson himself claimed: 'To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment'. He believed that the society forces it members to reveal their individuality so that its system ~~would~~ works ideally without disfunctions. While people need to be different, but not all of them are brave and mentally strong enough to brake this system. 78

~~Nevertheless~~ ^{maybe} Though the society is tough and cruel, everyone is able to reach prosperity in being ~~themselves~~ yourself. As for me, I'm ~~a shy person who loves dancing, but on school parties I used to dance only popular composition on school parties.~~ But ~~two~~ ^{2 years} ago I ~~worked~~ leveled up my confidence and started using my own movements in any dance as anyone looks at me. Now I feel freedom and self-assurance by expressing myself. 79

Be yourself to be free.

Be yourself!

Today's issue is very serious in our society, especially in younger people. Individuals are raving about the virtue of "being yourself" and how it affects a person's life.

For me, being yourself means revealing your true colours; the way you want to act in public, the decisions you make, the music you listen to, etc. In short, it means showing who you are as an individual without being ashamed of it or being scared of judgement from other people around you.

As Ralph Waldo Emerson once said, "To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment." Emerson was right to say this, as many of the youngsters lately have been more prone to hide their true character, and instead, be forced by their peers or parents to pretend and act like someone else.

Something very similar often happens to me; my parents are very critical of my decisions and they tend to stray me away from being myself. For example: they want me to start listening to songs that they themselves like, but I do not, or sometimes they want me to dress in a different matter if I am going to a gathering of some sort, or they want to suppress my superior attributes such as language learning to make way for studying maths. But I do not let that stop me from being myself, listening to music that I like and dressing in a way I feel is the best, because it brings me happiness and wholeness.

In conclusion I would like to say that being yourself is very important, and everyone should be free to express themselves.

Be yourself, you are unique!

Today many people are raving about the virtue of 'being yourself'. What does that mean and is it really important?

Maybe, you have experienced the following situation: you went to a ~~party~~ new place (it could be a new school, ~~a party~~ or, maybe, a party) and you were surrounded by companies of strangers. To make an impression, you decided to pretend being a better version of yourself and you told them stories, which, actually, weren't yours. Soon the truth was revealed. Why? It ~~could~~ ^{can} be attributed to the fact that it is impossible hard to ~~be~~ constantly trying ~~to~~ to live up to someone's expectations. From the very beginning you should have been yourself. It means that you shouldn't have ~~to~~ lied, ~~you~~ pretended, being ~~a~~ cooler person. Who knows, if you ~~were honest~~ had been honest with ~~the~~ your new friends, maybe ~~they would~~ ^{your friendship would have endured?} ~~have loved you more?~~ If not, why ~~don't~~ ^{real} not to try again, and find someone who will love ^{all} you with your disadvantages. ~~Remember~~ Do you remember what Judy Garland said: 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else.' Obviously, ~~It's~~ ^{It's} hard to disagree.
 gr. Everyone ~~ex~~ had an experience of not being yourself in some situations. ~~Whenever~~ I want to tell ^{my own} a story ~~when it helps~~ ~~not pretending helped me, though my experience may seem quite ridiculous.~~ I have been dreaming about being an exchange student for a long time. It was a competition from ~~a~~ ^{one} famous agency which could make my wish come true. I went to Moscow where I had to show my language and communicating ^{on} skills. In ~~real~~ ^{real} life I am shy, however, I was ready to do everything to win! And, actually, it was me, who became a winner. But difficulties were yet to come. My exchange year was a complete disaster, I ~~suffered~~ ^{became} a 'foreign outsider' and I suffered. ~~Never experienced, someone didn't pretend being~~

~~a better candidate, someone who really deserved it would have been on my place. Perhaps, it was not only me who was eager to go abroad for studying. I still think it was a mistake.~~

When you want to hide ~~that~~ your real character, remember, that it will be ~~diff~~ hard later to figure out who is real you and what ~~other~~ versions you made up to please others. You are ~~unique~~ unique and you don't have to be ~~someone else~~ ^{cooler better or than you are} to find people who will cherish you.

Be Yourself

Today many people are raving about the virtue of "being yourself". What does it mean? To my mind, being yourself means not to follow someones expectations and do what you want to do. For example, if you want to have a haircut, but your friend thinks that it is silly, you should not give this opinion a big role.

How Dave Pelzer said: "To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on".

I think, it is true. We all know, that people see you the way that you let them. In my life that really works really well: when I pretend to be funny and confident, my friends always like my jokes. But whenever I attribute with little inconfidence, I start being nervous and fail all the time.

Everyone should reveal their inside persons.

Try to wear what you want and do not feel guilty for it.

At the first time it will be difficult, but it worths it.

Then try to act like you normally do not, but want to.

And so on. These little steps can help you to find your own way to be yourself.

To sum up, there are many ways to be yourself, but it takes time to start being it. The best advice for all of us is to be the best versions of ourselves and not to stop after making a mistake once, because being yourself makes life more easy.

Part 3. "Be Yourself!"

"Be Yourself" - we hear this phrase more and more nowadays. But what does it mean?

From my point of view, "being yourself" means not trying to change yourself, not pretending to be someone else. A lot of young people these days look at others, maybe the ones who are more successful or trendy, and try to be like them. But it is not healthy in the first place. I believe that each person on this planet was created unique and full of talents. And all we have to do is to live our own life. Once Dave Pelzer said: "To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on". I totally agree with this. It means that being yourself is the only way to be happy, to help yourself. We are all humans and we all make mistakes, but what is most important is that we are able to learn from it and be the better version of ourselves in the future. I have also experienced this in my life. One time I was lacking some self-confidence so it made me think that ~~we~~ I should be like others, forget about my own thoughts and feelings. But luckily there was one person who told me I'm special. He revealed that we all have our own path in life so there is no need to pretend. I understood I was meant to be myself, not someone else.

To sum up, I strongly believe that being yourself is the only way of living a happy life as you can have a freedom to make choices, to grow by making mistakes and become the person we want to be.

PART 1. READING COMPREHENSION. TIME: 40 minutes. Maximum: 25 points.

TASK 1. Read the article and put the sentences A-G in the right place.

How many Mona Lisa paintings do you think there are in the world today? Just the one? I don't think so. The truth is that there are probably many, many Mona Lisa's hanging on walls or in studios. Of course only one was painted by Leonardo Da Vinci. 1) C.

In fact it is true to say that artists have been copying from other artists for hundreds if not thousands of years. Traditionally, it was normal for artists to copy other artists' paintings. This was a way of making sure historical, religious and artistic traditions were available for future generations. It was considered normal for an artist in training to practise by copying the work of other great artists. 2) F. Even today this practice continues.

Historically, the purpose of art was for historical reference, religious inspiration, or simple enjoyment. Most of the time no one cared who painted the paintings. 3) G. Paintings were usually commissioned by the church or state, not by individuals so the name of the artists was really unimportant.

However, from around the 16th century the church and state became poorer and money found its way into the hands of rich individuals. These individuals, as a means of showing their place in society or knowledge of art, drastically increased the demand for art. 4) B. This created people whose job it was to buy and sell paintings. It also created galleries and auction houses. Suddenly art was a business and at its centre was money.

As it became more and more important to decide how to value a painting or a work of art, dealers and collectors needed to create a system to value a painting. 5) E. If a painting was by Da Vinci then it would be exceedingly expensive. If it was a painting by one of his students it would be far cheaper. Now it was important for artists to sign their works so that they could be identified.

The problem with this system was that anyone could copy a signature. More complex ways of identifying the artist were needed, such as the colours they used or how they mixed their paints. 6) D. However, even styles can be copied and art students who needed to make money now could make a name for themselves by being able to copy exactly a great painter's style of work.

In addition, as always when money is involved, laws were needed to protect the real painters and paintings. It is at this point when we stop talking about 'copying' and begin talking about 'forgery' and 'forgers'. Today there are strict laws protecting artists and art from forgery. Dealers and auction houses employ specialists who are skilled at identifying forgeries. 7) A. So don't expect there ever to be one Mona Lisa.

A) Soon it became an art itself to be able to identify who really painted a work of art.

B) Suddenly more and more artists were needed and people competed to buy the paintings of certain individual artists.

C) But the art of copying or, if you can call it by its legal term, 'forgery' is very common in the art world.

D) However, whilst copying is central to learning the art of Art, Art will continue to create the same people that damage it, the forgers.

E) One way of doing this was by identifying an artist.

F) In fact, some of the most famous forgers in history, probably, discovered their skill while studying art at university.

G) This is why we find it difficult to identify the artists behind some of the greatest older paintings.

TASK 2. Unscramble the word for each of the gaps in the text.

Part 3. WRITING. TIME: 60 minutes. Maximum: 25 points.

Today many people are raving about the virtue of 'being yourself'. What does that mean? Are we really meant to be ourselves? You were asked to write the article entitled "Be Yourself!" to the school magazine. Your article must include:

- your explanation and interpretation what it means to 'be yourself';
- one of these quotations and its interpretation relevant to the article:
 - 'To be yourself in a world that is constantly trying to make you something else is the greatest accomplishment' (Ralph Waldo Emerson).
 - 'Always be a first rate version of yourself and not a second rate version of someone else' (Judy Garland).
 - 'To help yourself, you must be yourself. Be the best that you can be. When you make a mistake, learn from it, pick yourself up and move on' (Dave Pelzer);
- an example from your own experience;
- the words PRETEND, REVEAL, ATTRIBUTE. The form of the words can be changed.

Write 250-300 words. The title 'Be Yourself' is not counted.

Be yourself!

How often do you hear the words "be yourself"? I'm sure, quite often. Today the Internet is full of articles and posts about finding your way in life, being the true-self, the importance of having self-esteem and others. But what does it actually mean to be yourself? ^P _{vac}

When I was 13, I had a role model. It was Sonya Esman - a model, blogger and vegan. Due to her interesting life she was quite popular among youngsters. Doing photoshoots, for fashion designers, travelling all over the world and posting photos on Instagram was a dream of every young girl. So, I decided to become a vegan, loose weight, start a model career and be happy just like Sonya Esman. ^{gr}

Guess what happened then. After eating cabbage, carrots and cucumbers for a week I got problems with digestion and had to visit a doctor. My mom was worried and explained me that being happy is not about working as a model and being popular. Since then I understood how it's important to be yourself. ^{gr}

So, I think that being yourself means not to copy anybody. When you pretend to be ^{an} another person copying his actions, you completely lose yourself. In addition, people always recognize fake things. Not only is it stressful for you but also not pleasant for your friends and family. They love you just the way you are. ^{gr}

If you want to "be yourself", just talk to your family. They'll tell you your strong and weak points. This It will give you a chance to reveal the best of your character, your major attribute and consequently you won't have to copy anyone. ^{sp} _{sp} ⁴³
