PART 4. WRITING

Are modern teenagers still interested in reading books?

~~We live in a world of technology where we are not surprised by~~ drone car or fast information transfer by ~~new~~ global network, but we still use paper books and adults force children to read it.

Is it effectively for ~~good~~ or not? Is reading really healthy for our brain?

And so what about teenager's opinion?

People have been making books for a long time. The first books were published 500 years before Christ, but now ~~good~~ and is it necessary for us? I going to give several types opinions to identify own...

From first grade we buy books for studying ordinary skills such as the reading or writing. After elementary school we learning more and more subjects and the student has to walk a long distance with a huge load of brains why students can't by learning smth by hts their phones? (This is entirely possible given that it is used in other countries) And in my opinion if we didn't use paper, we had stopped the deforestation.

There are alternative opinion why the books good for us:

First reason is blurred vision, the scientist proved what th pupil becomes cloudy with a constant stream of light.

Second reason is what there are so many brains over the ~~years~~ centuries had written in books, and it have been transferred to the Internet. And third reason is "the amazing atmosphere", many people like when they buy the book, touch the pages, look at the cover, ec

From the over hand books can't give new words an information which really relevant for us.

In my personal opinion ~~we~~ get ~~receptor~~ information getting info you can get information not only from reading. I usually listen podcast instead read

In conclusion I would like to ~~say~~ say that the problem of reading is still to be discussed. Some teenagers hate reading, but son teenagers still love books warm evening reading.
